

Sustainable Cities and Communities

Promoting economic sustainability in cities involves ensuring accessible career and trade opportunities, affordable and secure housing, and fostering resilient communities and economies. This includes investments in public transportation, the creation of green public spaces, and advancing urban planning and management in a participatory and inclusive manner.

The Tourism and Hospitality Department incorporating with several universities in terms of tourism field such in Turkiye in order to add value to the sustainable community for future development.

